Life of Dancer Told In "Bolero," Coming to Torrance, Sunday, Mon.

Telling the intimate story of the life of a world-famous dancer, George Raft's latest starring picture, "Bolero," comes Sunday and Monday to the Torrance Theatre. Shown on the same double bill is that famous stage star, May Robson, in "You Can't Buy Everything."

Dashing Up the Comeback Road

Frank Wycoff, world's record holder in the 100-yard dash, got off to an auspicious start in his comeback attempt when he finished first in the century at a meet between U. S. C. and a team of all-stars. Wycoff is shown here, second from left, breaking the tape first. His time was 9.9, which is considered excellent for so early in the season.

Raft's Partner To Be "Dumb" And Beautiful

George Raft will soon be in the market for a slightly dumb dame! But there's a catch in it. She must also be of rare, exotic beauty, and must have exceptional ability as a dancer.

Raft's demands don't sound so dizzy when he explains. He is soon to leave for a vacation in Europe, when he finishes his current pictures for Paramount, the next of which is "Bolero," coming on Sunday and Monday to the Plaza Theatre at Hawthorne. He wants an ideal dancing partner to share the Continental appearances he plans to make in connection with his tour.

"The girl I want," declares Raft, "must be just dumb enough to do as she's told—either that, or smart enough not to need telling. She must be able to subordinate her own dancing tricks to the work of the team. The duet is important, not the individual. If I wanted to feature my own hoofing, I'd do a solo dance. But the members of a team must each subordinate themselves to look good as a couple."

Raft has quite a reputation in Continental circles to maintain. Just a few years ago, he was the highest paid American hooper in Paris. For the first time on the screen, he shows his dancing abilities in "Bolero," in which he is starred. Directed by Wesley Ruggles, the picture features Carole Lombard, Sally Rand, the Fan Dancer, and Frances Drake.
